INFORMATION

Difficulty index

Every tip in the “Hiking heaven & bike tours” brochure contains information about the difficulty of each tour, shown in different colours: strenuous tours are blue, moderate tours red and the easiest yellow. The colours are also displayed in the elevation profile for the hike in question and on the markings and signs in the hiking area. The graphics below show you the basis for the ratings:

Hiking

Hikes in Alpine valleys or the uplands

Tours on flat terrain, rather like a long walk. The terrain switches between easy forest and meadow trails, and forestry and farm tracks, without any noticeable difference in altitude.

Mostly unmade, well-marked trails, rarely on steep terrain. There may be short, demanding stretches. The difference in altitude is so moderate that the tour can also be undertaken with fit and active children.

Mountain hikes

Day tours in the uplands, plus mountain hut hikes

Moderately difficult tours, where easy hiking trails alternate with trails which are sometimes rocky or covered with tree roots. The difference in altitude is only slight and never prolonged, up to a maximum of 300 metres.

Easily walkable, marked mountain trails or mountain hut ascents requiring no climbing, with some steep trails posing no particular danger. No summit climbs. The difference in altitude is strenuous for the inexperienced, but moderate for experienced hikers. Good fitness levels and sure-footedness are required.

Alpine tours

Sure-footedness and a head for heights are required at all times

Summit ascents with easy climbing (I), with no particular foreseeable dangers. Routes not always marked, sometimes no obvious trail.

Alpine know-how, sure-footedness and a head for heights are required. Summit tour with maximum grade II difficulty climbs (UIAA). Includes category C+D alpine via ferratas. Important! Mostly unmarked and no obvious trail.

OUR TIP ⓘ

Special features: the meadows contain numerous medicinal herbs and a rest area at Mesner's Stall (beside the church).

Places of interest: St Nicholas' Parish Church.

Refreshment stops: restaurants in Lech am Arlberg.

1 WALK
FLÜHENWEG TRAIL VILLAGE

This circular walk provides superb views of picturesque Lech am Arlberg.

Starting point for the short village circuit is Rüfiplatz Lech. Follow the Lech river promenade upstream until you see the Hotel Pfefferkorn on your left. Walk past the hotel and turn left into a side street that slopes uphill.

The road takes you briefly through the district of Ebra and you soon come to an asphalt trail branching off to the left. Follow this to the edge of the wood where you bear left on a forest trail gently uphill.

Even from here you can marvel at a superb panoramic view of Lech am Arlberg and the [1] 3-hole golf course. After a few metres you come to a beautifully equipped [2] barbecue area with everything you need. So why not bring along some food, paperplates and cutlery and enjoy a lovely barbecue?

Continue on the trail until you reach a small wood where there is a very special rest area waiting for you- [3] 'Seelenbaumler' (rest area) with hammocks. Make yourself comfortable, have a good rest and enjoy the view of the mountains.

The trail continues to the edge of the wood where there's another [4] Rastplatz. Branch off left here and follow the farm track past the stable and across the field till you come to the first houses.

Follow the asphalt minor road through the district of Anger past the back of the church to the church square. This is where you'll find the [5] 'Steinplatz' (sculpture garden), a garden with sculptures made from 6 different types of stone. These witnesses to the earth's early history give you the chance to undertake some geological research.

Alternatively, you can continue to the district of Stubenbach and enjoy a coffee there.

OUR TIP ⓘ

Special features: the tour can be shortened by taking the Bergbahn Oberlech cable car.

Places of interest: St Martin's Chapel "an der Straß"

Refreshment stops: restaurants in Lech am Arlberg or Oberlech and Rud-Alpe hut.

2 WALK BURG WALD PATH

This walk is somewhat more demanding, but worth it for the magnificent views.

The walk starts in the village center of Lech. Follow the Lech river promenade upstream to the [1] St Martin's Chapel. From here follow the moderately steep, uphill forest trail.

There's a [2] rest area after the first climb. The trail continues slightly uphill through the wood.

From the clearings you can enjoy frequent views back towards Lech am Arlberg. You come to a forestry track which you follow left downhill through the wood.

When you come out of the wood, the forestry track winds across extensive mountain meadows.

You soon reach the traditional [3] Rud-Alpe, where you can enjoy a wonderful refreshment stop either on the spacious sun terrace or in the homely wood-panelled parlours with an open fire.

Continue downhill past a [4] rest area with lovely views. From here it's just a few metres downhill until you come to an asphalt minor road.

Follow the road to the left and at the next junction take the right-hand fork downhill until you reach the old, covered wooden bridge. From here you follow the Lech river promenade downstream. When you come to the B&B Pension Waldesruh, cross a bridge over the Lech river and you're back at your starting point.

5 FAMILY HIKE
BODENALPE

Lots of different options provide this family hike with plenty of variety.

The walk starts from the village center. Follow the Lech river promenade upstream until you see the Pfefferkorn hotel on your left. Walk past the hotel and turn left into a side street that slopes uphill.

Shortly afterwards, an asphalt trail branches off to the left. Follow this to the edge of the wood. Continue on a slightly uphill forest trail on the left and already you can start to enjoy a superb panoramic view of Lech am Arlberg and the [1] 3-hole golf course.

The trail continues to the edge of the wood where you come to a [2] rest area. Go downhill to the left here to the stable, and then immediately right again along a forest path. Follow the path through a wood, across a rushing stream to the [3] Lechweg barbecue area. Having reached the wayside cross, take the farm track that climbs to the right. Go past a [4] traditional mountain hut and follow the trail left uphill in the direction of Tristeller Alpe mountain pasture.

You come to a fork where you follow the signpost left down the hill on a forestry track through the wood. Stay on the wide gravel trail until a narrow Cross a wooden bridge to reach the other bank. From there the narrow trail leads upwards across a meadow to the [5] Bodenalpe. After a well-earned rest you can take the same route back to Lech, or take the hiking bus which stops right outside the Bodenalpe.

Option: via Stubenbach

At the fork to the Tristeller Alpe, follow the signpost downhill to the left on a forestry track. After a few bends a narrow forest trail branches off to the left. This takes you back through the district of Stubenbach and on to the village centre.

6 FAMILY HIKE RAVENSBURGER HÜTTE

The trail to the Ravensburger Hütte is a great experience for the whole family, with lovely views of the Spullersee.

From the hike starting point at the village center, take the hiking bus towards Spullersee (included in the Lech Card). You get off at the last stop, from where you can walk round the [1] Spullersee on a broad alpine trail.

Cross the southern dam wall and continue round the lake. The trail only starts to rise after you've left the lake behind.

You can take a refreshment break at the [2] Ravensburger Hütte and enjoy gorgeous views of the lake. Now fortified, continue uphill on the alpine trail for a short distance. Keep to the left and you come to the [3] Brazer Staffel Alpine pasture. Continue uphill on the trail between the house and stable and, after a few bends, you reach the highest point, the [4] Stierlochjoch (2,009 m).

From here it's a moderately steep downhill descent. After a few metres you leave the wide trail and continue straight on through the stands of pine and then through the forest.

You will reach a forest road. Here you go uphill to the right for a short time and you soon come to a narrow trail signposted to the "Wasserfallweg" trail branching off to the left, which takes you down to the [5] waterfall. Shortly after the waterfall you reach the golf course of Lech.

Follow the trail further downstream towards Zug. You come to a wide footpath and can now either go right, along the banks of the Lech river towards Lech am Arlberg, or left to the [6] fish pond and from there take the hiking bus back to your starting point.

Worth knowing

The very fact that Lech spring water originates from high in the Alps is a guarantee of pure, natural drinking water, as far as possible uncontaminated by manmade pollutants. Even the most stringent of tests have not detected any heavy metals, pesticides or hydrocarbons in the Schwarzbach spring water. At approximately 1 mg per litre, the absolutely undesirable nitrates are also around fifty times lower than permitted values (this is, however, exceeded in many other places of intensive farming in Austria).

7 FAMILY HIKE ON CRYSTAL-CLEAR PATHS

On this hike you'll discover the source of Lech spring water, also fondly known as "Chateau Madloch" or "Schwarzbach Riesling".

From the hike starting point at the village center, follow the Lech riverside trail as previously described to Zug, or take the hiking bus (included in the Lech Card). Go past the [1] fish pond and continue upstream on the left bank of the Lech river.

You can cross the Lech by a bridge and soon you come to the [2] Zuger Säge, the site of the unspoilt [3] Weißbach karst spring. Just 100 metres along the asphalt toll road into the valley you'll find the spring of the [4] Schwarzbach.

Return over the bridge to the [5] barbecue area and follow the hiking trail along the course of the river until you can cross the Lech parallel with the [6] Gasthaus Älpele.

You can take a break here and return to your starting point by bus.

! OUR TIP

Special features: fly fishing is permitted on parts of the Lech river. Contact Lech Zürs Tourismus for further information and fishing permits

Places of interest: the municipality of Lech's water supply meets all the criteria for classification as "Suitable for a low-sodium diet" and "Suitable for preparation of baby food".

Refreshment stop: restaurants in Lech am Arlberg, Zug, the fish pond and Gasthaus Älpele.

Enormous tectonic forces, fascinating geological processes and far-reaching climatic influences created and shaped over hundreds of millions of years on the Rüfikopf. Its rocks tell the story of the development and disappearance of entire continents and seas, its sediments hold the most valuable relics, its shape tells of the formation of the Alps as well as of the mighty glaciers.

Alternative: If you do not want to hike the entire Geoweg you can take a look at the new SteinZeit Weg Rüfikopf - you will get a glimpse into the fascinating world of geology.

9 THEMED HIKES
BLÜTENREICH RÜFIKOPF - PATH OF A THOUSAND COLOURS

Fantastic natural wonders, resilient and creative.

As tranquil as the appearance of blooming alpine flowers may seem to us, we should not be misled: The plants that hold their own in these zones are among the most inventive, tough, resilient, persistent and enduring that the plant world has to offer. They can cope with temperature changes of up to 40 °C within a day, withstand icy winds, endure metre-thick blankets of snow and often use only tiny windows of time to sprout, flower and bear fruit.

The short themed trail is equipped with numerous information boards. In addition, many plants are labelled with German and Latin names.

If you want to extend the trail a bit, you can walk to Lake Monzabon, linger on one of the benches and record your memories at the Green Ring post box.

! OUR TIP

Special features: Please do not pick the flowers! Most of them are under strict nature protection! Also, stay on the nature trail to avoid trampling damage. Your own alpine flower booklet is available at the Rüfikopf panorama restaurant, at the ticket office of the Rüfikopf cable car and at Lech Zürs Tourism for € 7,-.

OUR TIP

Special features: you can look at and handle fossils up to 200 million years old.

Places of interest: Formarinsee was voted the most beautiful place in Austria in 2015. Steinernes Meer – a huge accumulation of fossils, including fossils of what Austrian hunters call “Steinbockhorn” (ibex horn).

Refreshment stops: restaurants in Lech am Arlberg or Zug, Gasthaus Äpele and Freiburger Hütte.

10 THEMED HIKES STEINERNES MEER – FREIBURGER HÜTTE – FORMARINSEE

Dive into the petrified sea of corals, mussels, tower snails and ammonites.

Starting at the Rüfiplatz, you take the hiking bus towards Formarinsee (included in the Lech Card).

After travelling through the natural gem that is the Zugertal valley, you get off at the last stop. Follow the road back to the Alpe Formarin.

After the hut, a meadow trail branches off to the right. This takes you across the Alpine meadows, past the [1] Ibex memorial. At the next fork follow the marked trail to the right uphill.

After the climb you come to the first site, a (a) small coral reef, a precursor of the Steinernes Meer. All the sites are identified on the metal casings by the respective letters.

The trail continues along the marked sites across the (b) karst plateau.

At the next fork you bear left to another site (c) where there are countless belemnites, nautili and

[2] ammonites to discover in the red lias. They are regarded as a common predecessor of the squid.

Return to the fork and follow the trail straight ahead.

After just a few metres you come across a large accumulation of (d) megalodons in lots of different forms and cross-sections, including the ibex horn. This is a giant mussel whose shell has been partly polished by erosion.

Stay on this trail until you reach the [3] Freiburger Hütte where you can take a break and enjoy the views of the [4] Formarinsee.

From here you can either follow the wide farm track left around the lake, or take the shorter, narrower hiking trail on the right. This trail is only recommended, however, for experienced hikers who have the necessary head for heights.

Geological Lexicon

UPPER RHAETIAN LIMESTONE:

This pale limestone is approximately 220 million years old. It was created in a similar way to the Barrier Reef, corals in front and lagoons behind providing a habitat for snails and mussels. The sea created this sedimentary stone from their shells and chalk deposits.

RED LIAS:

this limestone also gives the Rote Wand (Red Wall) mountain its name, is approximately 200 million years old and contains some iron. The main fossils are ammonites and belemnites.

CALCITE:

A “joint filler” which fills out hollows such as crevices in limestone. Aragonite, which is made up of mussel and snail shells, is crystallised into calcite. Coral branches are also filled with this crystalline white material.

AMMONITE:

Ammonites are cephalopods that became extinct around 70 million years ago, with shallow, spiral shells, the front of which was used as the living chamber. They are widely regarded as distant predecessors of the squid.

BELEMNITE (THUNDERBOLT):

These were rod-shaped, squid-like marine creatures with 10 tentacles. The skeletons of these invertebrates have retained their cigar shape as fossils. They became extinct approximately 70 million years ago, but live on in the squid.

MEGALODONS (COW HOOF MUSSELS):

The mussels stood upright in the sand and could reach considerable sizes. The shells of the extinct species have been replaced by calcite. People once believed that the patterns in the stone, which look like cow’s hooves, were the print of the devil’s hooves.

NAUTILI:

Are squids with spiral-shaped, rolled up or elongated shells with several chambers, the outermost of which is inhabited by the animal. Unlike ammonites, the shell spirals bend forwards and nautili can still be found in the seas today

Please don't strike the stones - you could permanently destroy the fossils!

Tannberg is a place with a great deal of history. It not only forms the axis between the Bregenzerwald, Arlberg and the Lechtal valley; this was once the seat of the Walser People court, which gives the region its name. Since the immigration of the Walser People from the Swiss canton of Valais, Tannberg has linked the three settlements of Lech, Warth and Schröcken. Everyone who travels across this plateau is following in the footsteps of the Walser People and hiking through many centuries of history.

Continue across colourful mountain meadows with extensive [3] fields of chives to the Auenfeldsattel saddle. Branch off to the left here onto the wide alpine trail until you reach the [4] Untere Auenfeldalpe. Continue left on the trail, following the stream out through the Auenfeld valley until a narrow trail branches off to the right towards the Körbersee lake. Follow the trail uphill and you soon have a wonderful view of the [5] Körbersee.

The trail now follows the slope downhill to the lake shore. Continue along the shore to the [6] Hotel Körbersee. Go past the hotel on a much wider trail up and down until you reach the [7] Kalbelesee. From here it's just a few more metres along the right-hand side of the main road to the bus stop. Take the hiking bus back to your starting point.

Option: instead of following the narrow trail towards the Körbersee, stay on the wide trail which takes you straight to the [8] “uf’m Tannberg” museum and the Batzenalpe hut. After visiting the Alpine museum and perhaps a refreshment stop at the Batzenalpe, you continue uphill on the trail to the right which takes you straight to the Hotel Körbersee. From here follow the route as already described until you reach the end of this hike.

! OUR TIP

Special features: In the Footsteps of the Walser People on the Tannberg – the guide book is available from Lech Zürs Tourism for € 16,50.

Places of interest: “uf’m Tannberg” Alpine pasture museum – former dairy and ancient legacy of the Walser people

Refreshment stop: restaurants in Lech am Arlberg or Oberlech, Auenfeldhütte and Hotel Körbersee.

This route guides you through numerous places of cultural and natural history significance.

Directly from the village center you take the hiking bus to Oberlech and get out at the end station.

Follow the road uphill until an asphalt minor road branches off to the right. Follow this to the [1] Skyspace-Lech, the light art by James Turrell. From here a well-surfaced trail takes you to the right downhill to the far end of the ravine. Now cross to the other side over a wooden bridge and continue uphill to the [2] Gaisbühelalpe.

Continue up and down across colourful mountain meadows with extensive [3] fields of chives to the Auenfeldsattel. Branch off to the right and follow the hiking trail first uphill, then down again until you come to a trail shortly before Bürstegg.

Go left as far as [4] Bürstegg where you can take a break and let the unique landscape and peace and quiet work their magic on you.

If the weather's nice, it's worth descending via the [5] Wang-Hus. Follow the trail across the fields behind Bürstegg that branches off to the right.

The trail very soon turns into a narrow trail which descends relatively steeply through the wood to the Wang-Hus and ends right next to the bus stop.

If it's raining, it's worth descending from Bürstegg to the Bodenalpe via the trail. You can take a rest at the wonderful restaurant and afterwards, you take the hiking bus back to Lech.

! OUR TIP

Skyspace-Lech: The Skyspace Lech is a largely underground structure that blends into the landscape at "Tannegg" with great care. The oval main room has an oval opening in the ceiling and a circular bench which, like the floor, is lined with black granite.

After dusk falls, the light installation in the room bathes the walls and ceiling in changing coloured lights, so that the spatial structure, which was previously perceived as clean, seems to dissolve.

Refreshment stop: restaurants in Lech and Oberlech am Arlberg, Bodenalpe.

THEMED HIKES

Nature reserve Gypsum Holes

Around 220 million years ago, during the Triassic period, the Oberlech area was close to the equator and had a very hot, dry climate.

The coastal area at that time consisted of many little lagoons. Floods deposited salt water in the lagoons, which then boiled in the burning heat. The concentration of salts in the solution consequently rose and sulphates (gypsum, anhydrite) were precipitated.

Since the gypsum formed 220 million years ago, the Oberlech area has since migrated northwards on a tectonic plate, which collided with the European plate, causing the Alps to form and the former lagoon sediments to be raised up to a great height.

The gypsum landscape which weathered quickly exhibits varying morphological phenomena. On the one hand, gypsum formation caused the ground to swell and hillocks to form.

Anhydrite, which is a sulphur mineral stable at greater depths, is transformed into gypsum at the surface by the absorption of water. This entails an increase in volume of up to 50%. Conversely, gypsum is dissolved, creating gypsum holes. On average, per m<sup>2</sup>, around 3 kg of rock are dissolved and carried away every year.

The gypsum holes are also special in botanical terms because every hole becomes a special microclimate for plants.

OUR TIP

Special features: the varied landscape also offers marmots perfect protection from predators. From July to mid-August, when the orchids are in bloom, ten different species of orchid can be found right next to the hiking trail.

Places of interest: in terms of number and appearance, the gypsum holes and more than 1,000 sinkholes are geological features unequalled in Europe. The biggest sinkhole's diameter is 100 metres and it is 35 metres deep.

Refreshment stops: restaurants in Lech and Oberlech.

13 THEMED HIKES GYPSUM HOLES NATURE RESERVE

With more than 1,000 dolines, the gypsum holes are considered as a geological speciality. The largest doline has a diameter of almost 100 m and a crater about 35 m deep.

This area is also a real treasure chest for botanists. 20 different species of orchids grow here. Hikes during the orchid blossoming season from July to mid-August are particularly beautiful. The varied landscape also provides marmots with optimal protection from enemies, and the soft gypsum rock is ideal for building caves.

Information boards along the nature trail provide information about the origins of this doline landscape.

From the [1] Petersboden cable car, head directly next to the gypsum holes in the direction of [2] Grubenalpe, before the trail takes a sharp right into the [3] Nature Reserve Gipslöcher.

Here you can do a circular tour before continuing over the Mohnenfluh past the Goldener Berg to [4] Oberlech cable car where you can either take the cable car down into the valley or hike through the Burgwald or the Rudtobel and Rudalpe back to your starting point.

Now follow the [3] Geoweg Rütikopf downhill in the direction of the [4] Monzabonsee. From there continue downhill to the [5] Monzabonalpe.

Places of interest: the European Watershed is the place from where the water flows either into the Black Sea or the North Sea.

Shortly before crossing the Pazüelbach you come to a unique feature, the [6] Mountain Hut Library, where you can choose a good book, have a read and spend some time relaxing. Continue on the wide mountain trail past the Trittalbahn valley station, then slightly uphill again until the trail descends moderately steeply towards Zürs am Arlberg.

15 STAGE 2
THE GREEN RING

Take the hiking bus to Zürs Seekopfbahn. This helps you to save some power. As alternative, you can also hike up from the end of the village Zürs to [1] Zürsersee. There's a jetty on the lake where you can take a break and enjoy the crystal-clear lake in its gorgeous mountain setting. Continue uphill to [2] Taurin's cave and past the [3] Gate, as the route through the grassy hillocks is known, as far as the [4] Glacier Town by the Madloch and on to the highest point, the Madlochjoch ridge, where there's another [5] summit book in which you can achieve immortality!

From there follow a rather narrow trail across some limestone terrain down onto the saddle between the Stierlochkopf and Zuger Mittagsspitze peaks.

The [6] bivouac is located here on the top. Continue down the hairpin bends past [7] Taurin the Giant until you come to another hiking trail. Keep to the right here, and shortly afterwards branch off down to the left. Continue downhill until you meet the Lechweg trail.

Here you can branch off to the left and take a short diversion to the hidden [8] waterfall.

Or you can stay on the trail which leads you past the [9] fish pond and on to the bus stop in Zug village centre.

! OUR TIP

Special features: the bivouac provides accommodation for anyone keen to experience something unique, and prepared to cope with rather Spartan facilities.

Places of interest: Taurin the Giant - legend has it that Taurin was greatly displeased when avalanches spoiled the appearance of his beautiful mountain and swore to replace all the rocks and restore the mountain to its former glory. The giant wooden figure represents Taurin standing at a rock fissure and trying to transport the rubble back up to the top again.

Refreshment stops: Seekopf restaurant, restaurants in Lech am Arlberg, Zug and the fish pond.

Free postcards for you to write and post are available at the [10] Post box. The post is collected and sent on once per year.

From here on the right side, the hiking path starts up upon meadows towards the woods. A trail through the woods then rises steeply through the [2] Sagenwald to the [3] Balmalp. From there continue on a fairly wide trail that is at first quite flat but soon becomes steeper to the right up to the [4] Kriegerhorn (2,173 m).

Continue to the next highlight, the [5] Chluppa (stone wall) and go past the reservoir to the [6] Kriegeralpe. After a fortifying snack, continue on the broad trail. Soon a trail branches off to the right, taking you to the [7] Der Wolf.

At the next fork, follow the pretty hiking trail to the left, downhill across the blooming mountain pastures to Oberlech and Bergbahn Oberlech mountain station.

Mountain hikes

Seeing the world from on high as we hike helps us to distance ourselves from our daily cares and woes. We escape by discovering new perspectives as we walk and gain distance and independence. Everything looks smaller from on high, we forget our everyday problems and so many conflicts are suddenly unimportant. The grandeur of the mountains makes everything seem quite relative, and we can look at insurmountable problems with a new sense of proportion.

The stage between Stuben and Lech is probably the easiest section and delights with views of the Flexengalerie, the discovery of the Zürser See and is rewarded at the end with the arrival in Lech am Arlberg.

From picturesque [1] Stuben am Arlberg, the gateway to the Arlberg, take the village road along a forest path past the E-Trial park in the direction of Flexental. Shortly after the Mondscheinhütte (closed), Flexenbach Stream is crossed, and the route briefly becomes steeper along the Franz Josef Trail in the direction of the [2] Flexen Pass. Soon you will reach the great [3] European watershed.

The trail descends gently towards [4] Zürs am Arlberg, where you reach the [5] Seekopfbahn cable car on the village outskirts. This whisks you up to 2,212 metres, where at the top, you not only have a fantastic view of Lake [6] Zürsersee, but also an excellent opportunity for refreshments at Seekopf Panoramarestaurant. Afterwards, the trail goes up to [7] Madlochjoch (2,450m). From there, the trail follows in the tracks of the White Ring, a famous winter ski circuit, over rocks and alpine meadows with views of [8] Lech am Arlberg and on via Gstütaalpe down into the valley.

Before the end of this stage, wonderful views of Lech am Arlberg, 1,450 m above sea level, are particularly inspiring.

Beautiful tour to one of Lech's mountains with some of the best views.

Take the gondola up to the [1] Rüfikopf mountain station (2,350 m). Follow the wide trail straight ahead down to the signpost. There's a short climb to a ridge. From there steep hairpin bends first lead down onto the saddle to the north-west ridge of the Rüfispitze. From there you hike along the ridge.

At the end of the grass ridge there's a short climb up the crag, secured with steel cables. You now continue across rocks and scree to the [2] Rüfispitze (2,632 m). From here you can enjoy a wonderful view of the [3] Monzabonsee glittering below. Return on the same trail to the saddle where a trail branches off to the right, taking you downhill to the [4] Ochsengümpel.

After crossing a stream, the trail continues along the spine of a hill, ascending slightly, until you come to the fork where the trail meets the Friedrich-Mayer-trail.

Follow the trail to the left below the Wösterspitze as far as the [5] Wöstersattel where the trail widens and loops down to the Täliälpe hut. Continue following the trail downhill to the left until you come to an asphalt side road in the [6] Stubenbach.

Follow the road as far as the bus stop from where you can return to your starting point on the hiking bus, or walk back to Lech am Arlberg village centre via the previously described Flühenweg trail.

! OUR TIP

Special features: the tour can be extended by 2 hours by ascending via the Schwarzwand mountain.

Places of interest: Geoweg Rüfikopf trail – a journey through earth's early history: this interesting and informative tour walks you through a wonderful Alpine "stone garden", in which gorgeous flowers and herbs create an enchanting contrast to the different rock forms.

Refreshment stops: Rükopf Panoramarestaurant, "Zit lo" restaurant in Stubenbach and restaurants in Lech am Arlberg.

27 SUMMIT TOUR
KARHORN VIA FERRATA

As this via ferrata is not too long or difficult, it's suitable for novices, although access and exit do require a certain level of fitness. If you're not 100% sure, experienced mountain guides are there to help.

From Rüfplatz, you take the hiking bus to Warth (included in the Lech Card). The [1] Steffisalp-Express cable car takes you up to the mountain station where a trail branches off uphill to the left.

The trail runs uphill along the left-hand side of a hollow to the saddle.

Before taking the trail to the right here to enter the via ferrata, you can take in the summit of the [2] Warther Horn (2,256 m) almost in passing. To do so, branch off left at the saddle and follow the marked trail to the summit.

Return to the start of the via ferrata and climb to the summit of the [3] Karhorn (2,416 m).

In addition to a lovely climb with a difficulty index of II and III, you can also enjoy ever-changing panoramic views as far as Valluga, Säntis and the Allgäu Alps.

Descend via the normal route until the trail on the Karbühel joins a wider trail where you can either go left towards [4] Bürstegg and continue downhill to the [5] Bodenalpe, or bear right heading for the Auenfeldsattel and from there continue to Oberlech.

In both cases you can take the hiking bus back to your starting point in Lech am Arlberg.

! OUR TIP

Special features: in addition to the usual hiking equipment, it's absolutely essential that you bring a via ferrata kit and helmet.

Places of interest: the first via ferrata in Vorarlberg was installed on the east ridge of the striking Karhorn mountain.

Refreshment stops: restaurants in Warth, Bodenalpe and restaurants in Lech am Arlberg.

GUIDANCE ON HOW TO CONDUCT YOURSELF ON A HIKE

- [1] Never undertake a mountain tour or extended mountain hikes alone. Before you set out on the tour, make sure you know about the route conditions, possible hazardous places and how long the tour will take.
- [2] If you've little experience of tours in the mountains, join a hike organised by Lech Zürs Tourismus or contact a qualified hiking or mountain guide.
- [3] Tell the hotel or B&B owner about the route you plan to take, your destination and the time you expect to return, and keep to it. This means that, in an emergency, a search is likely to succeed more quickly.
- [4] Always consider the prevailing conditions when choosing equipment. Weather in the mountains can change very quickly so, in addition to ankle-high hiking boots with a profiled sole, your equipment should include the following: rucksack with provisions, first aid kit, waterproofs and clothing to protect against the cold. We recommend taking a mobile phone with you for emergencies.
- [5] Don't start off too late and don't take any shortcuts en route. For your own safety, follow signs and markings.
- [6] Stay calm if there's an accident. For emergency assistance, dial 144 for mountain rescue and 112 for the European emergency number. If you don't have a mobile phone with you or don't have a signal, draw attention to yourself with audible (shouting, whistling) or visible signals (reflecting light with a mirror, torch, waving a large item of clothing).
- [7] The number of holidaymakers increases the pressure on nature. Sadly, far too often cigarette ends, plastic bottles, energy bar wrappers, fruit peel and paper tissues end up in the countryside. Please keep the mountains clean.

Arlberg Hiking Pass

Hiking at the Arlberg is getting even more exciting with the digital hiking pass. Many summits, huts and hikes in the Lech Zürs region will be rewarded with points. From a certain number of total points, various hiking pins can be achieved. In the age of digitalisation, the points are collected exclusively via smartphone with the free "SummitLynx" app.
