A hike to Bürstegg

Tuesday, 11. July 2023, 10:00

Registration : join@alltogethernow.at Alltogether we take a Hike from Kristiana Lech via Flühenweg to Bürstegg. On the way back we stop at Philipp Jochum on the Bodenalpe. Duration of the excursion in total approx. 6 hours, hiking approx. 4 hours. Sturdy shoes and rain gear recommended.

ABOUT BÜRSTEGG

With its location at an altitude of 1,719 m above sea level, the Bürstegg settlement is the highest Walser settlement in the Austrian province of Vorarlberg. Once inhabited all year round, the settlement at the foot of the Warther Karhorn in the municipality of Lech am Arlberg is now only used as an alp in the summer months.

The area at the foot of the Karhorn has been inhabited by people since the Walser settled the rearmost mountain regions of Vorarlberg around the year 1300. Since the hilltop settlement of Bürstegg was above the tree line and therefore no firewood was available, peat was dug around the small settlement and dried in the dry arbor that still exists today under the gable of the stable building. The name "Bürstegg" is derived from the alpine mat grass that grew in the swampy areas around Bürstegg and is popularly known as "Burst" or "Burstl".

Since 1695 there has also been a separate Catholic expositur church in Bürstegg, which is dedicated to Saint Martin. Today the church with a baroque altar, statues and some panel paintings is listed as monument protection. For 1835, the existence of 13 families in just as many houses in Bürstegg is documented, but the place may have been resettled as early as 1898 due to the difficult situation of the mountain farmers. Today, as a result, Bürstegg is only used as a high alp in the summer months and is also increasingly visited by hikers during this time.

... could be a fitting subtitle for Paul Thuile's "Wurstfibel". After all, the cooking artist and artistic chef never limits himself to just one sausage or to just one attempt.

In the sausage-making class at Kristiania Lech, you will learn about the stories of Paul's childhood (and the importance of sausage for his mother and grandmother back then, when he was a child). There are also recipes and behind the scenes stories on several varieties of sausage. Throughout, Paul talks about life hacks and has lots of tips.
